Jap Bomb-Balloon Sites

Tokyo, May 10. An American 1st Cavalry reconnaisance party, penetrating the remote Otsu peninsula on Japan's east coast, north of Tokyo, discovered evidence of one of Japan's top war secrets the concrete sites from which the Japanese launched their bombing balloons across the Pacific in 1944 in an attempt to blast the United States, it was disclosed today.

Generating plants, special platforms and other equipment for the silken gas-filled balloons were found scattered over hundreds of acres in the Otsu area.

The balloons, which were loaded with explosives, were borne on castward gales and remained aloft for days. Most of them, however, pover found targets and information regarding the few that did reach the North American coast was withheld from the Japanese. HESS FLIGHT

Washington, May 10. Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy, offered to guarantee Britain's Empire possessions in return for uncontested German control of conquered Europe, it was disclosed today in a published transcript of a conversation between Hess and the Duke of Hamilton after the former's historic flight to Britain.

Details of the conversation of six years ago are outlined in the final volume of an eight volume series on Nazi aggression published by the War Department and released tonight.

"Germany has no designs on America," Hess said. "The socalled German peril is a ludicrous element of the imagination. Hitler's interests are European." GOVERNMENT VICTORIES CENTRAL SHANTUNG British

The Government forces, giving no respite to the Communists in Central Shantung, have captured five strategic points outside Ishui and Chuhsien - Tanfow, Hsiachuang, Chiehhu, Yishan and Chiusai.

Ishui and Chuhsien, 55 and 45 miles north of Linyi and the two remaining strongest Red bases in Central Shantung, are now within range of Nationalist artillery and expected to fall at any moment.

impact of atomic power on the American economy will not be great. But consider, as an eminent physicist has pointed out, what several plants with a capacity of a million kilowatts each could mean to Britain now caught between the hammer of rising needs for power and the anvil of lower coal production. All of Britain's electric-power needs could be met by the burning of about twenty pounds of nuclear fuel a day. While the labour cost of coal in the United States is less than 10/- per ton, here it is nearly & 1.5s. It is altogether clear that if the techproblem of utilizing that this new advance should atomic power is attacked with scientific brilliance Britain has so often and amply demonstrated, if economic problem is met with the vigor, the courage and the imagination your government

But whatever science has yet to offer of marvels to outmarvel the present, of comforts, of new insights, we of today must recognize that there may be no tomorrow unless the freedom of man and the peace of the world are preserved. Freedom is essential to science. No more can man exist without it. For science to come to full flower the world needs peace. No more can man reap its benefits unless he learns to live in peace. Starts With Hutton Big Score

London, May 10. Today saw the opening of the County cricket season, and Len Hutton, England and Yorkshire opening batsman, has started the season like a batsman on the top of his form.

Against Glamorgan, at Swansea, he scored his second century in successive matches, and his score is the highest of the season so far. He showed the full power of his wide range of scoring shots but when only three runs short of his double century the ball lifted and he gave a catch at short leg. Altogether, he batted 41 hours and hit 26 boundaries.
